

Who Am I?

Agriculture By-Products Edition

Name _____

Your Challenge: Solve the riddles below. You must name the agriculture source and the by-product itself.

Practice Round

Riddle: I'm red when raw and brown when cooked. Cover me with cheese, lettuce, onion and a bun, and I've got the perfect look! I'm a by-product of _____. What am I?

Answer: Cattle, hamburger

1. I'm a by-product of _____, and you use me to keep cuts and scrapes clean. Once you stick me on, I'll help you heal! What am I?
2. I'm a by-product of _____, and you may have used me this morning. I'm good at untangling knots. What am I?
3. I'm a by-product of _____, and if you want a good night's sleep, you need me! I'll keep you warm and comfy. What am I?
4. I'm a by-product of _____, and I'm found on many school desks. If you want to take notes, you're going to need me. What am I?
5. I'm a by-product of _____, and I'm a type of soap, used to keep people clean. There's only one place on your body you would want to use me, and that's on your head! What am I?
6. I'm a by-product of _____, and you might be surprised that humans aren't the only ones that like to eat me! My pulp is a good source of energy for animals that need to grow big and strong. Who am I?
7. I'm a by-product of _____, and I'm found on paper. Usually you can find me in the crossword puzzles and classified ads. Who am I?
8. I'm a by-product of _____, and I keep things running. Without me, it would be hard to change the channel, call from a cell phone, or even use your buzzer. Sometimes, I'm rechargeable. Who am I?
9. I'm a by-product of _____, and I can be found on many women's faces. Who am I?
10. I'm a by-product of _____, and many people who don't eat meat eat me instead. I often come in white squares. Who am I?